Conversion—costs up, parents oppose switch

A Frederiksen School conversion architect's preliminary and rough estimate of total conversion costs exceed the lid put on the project by the Murray School District by $150,000.

Architect A. Hajul Akol, in a rambling report to Murray trustees Monday night, said that rough estimates, including everything proposed by staff, would result in a conversion cost of about $400,000. The district's contract with the architect places a $250,000 ceiling on the project that calls for remodeling the school to house seventh and eighth graders by September.

Akol initially told board members that a week was not sufficient time in which to come up with precise figures.

Wally Moreskine, acting assistant superintendent, said Akol would probably be ready with more precise cost estimates in another week.

Trustees also learned that parents of 104 children at Wells have asked that their youngsters be permitted to remain at the school rather than be transferred to Frederiksen. Parents of 20 at Cronin and 19 at Fallon have made similar requests to not be transferred to the other K-6 school.

Business manager Darrell Carter, while noting that the district is no longer qualified to be in the State Building Program, said that a proposed sale of remaining bonds ($680,000) from an original 1972 authorization of $2 million would cause the tax rate next year to escalate by 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The district no longer qualifies for the state program because of declining enrollment and excessive square footage (of buildings). The $2 million bond issue of 1972 would have provided the district with monies to build an intermediate grade school. However, declining enrollment made Murray ineligible for the state building program.

The district still has two school sites which, as trustees were reminded Monday night, they owe money on— Dolan in the Silvergate section and Stoneson in Pleasanton.

Carter said the district still owes $163,000 on Dolan and Stoneson.

The action to request county supervisors to sell remaining '72 bonds was approved 4-1 with Ann Henderson casting the dissenting vote.

Trustees set next Monday at 8 p.m. to met with Murray Teacher Association representatives on their 1977-78 contract proposal. The meeting, open to the public, will be at Frederiksen School.

Moreskine and acting superintendent Heinz Gewing reported on consolidation of school facilities, which involves the boundary changes that affect students at Frederiksen, Wells, Cronin and Fallon.

Carter reviewed the preliminary budget for 1977-78, currently pegged at $8,043,809. The budget for the present school year, by comparison, is $8,098,292.

Dr. Donald Leu, consultant hired by the district to head the search for a new superintendent, will meet with the professional screening committee Saturday at the district offices.

Exploding candy a merchant's blast

Watch out, America — we're right in the middle of an exciting, although probably short-lived, fad — POP ROCKS!

These little sugar crystals, in grape, cherry and orange, are being ripped off the shelves by kids and grown-ups alike, local merchants report, due to their unique effect:

Once in the mouth, they explode.

Ten cases of Pop Rocks (nearly 2,000 packets) sold out in two and a half days in San Ramon, a TG&Y clerk said. The 7-11 store on Silvergate Drive in Dublin rations them three to a person; and the chain's Pleasanton store is completely sold out.

A common occurence in playgrounds, office buildings and — who knows where? — is for someone to come up and, with a sparkle in his eye, ask, "Wanta try sumptin' neat?"

A skeptical glance follows — a flashback to the time chocolate laxatives were placed in the candy dish — but curiosity rules. And the typical reaction is "Wow, what's that?"

They are artificially - flavored sugar crystals, processed with carbon dioxide to provide the pop. And at 20 cents a pack, it works out to nearly $20 a pound.

A chemist at the Foremost research center in Dublin theorized yesterday that when saliva dissolves the candy coating, carbon dioxide is released. The gas exerts pressures which simulate the crackling effect.

"Are you looking for Pop Rocks?", a night clerk at the Dublin 7-11 routinely asks when a bewildered adult scampers fruitlessly up and down the candy aisle. (They are usually kept on the front counter, away from sticky fingers.)

"It's fantastic," she said. "We can hardly keep them in stock, that's why we ration them. And adults buy them to show their friends."

And 1977 has a new star.

The Queen Anne style of architecture (1875-1910) is exemplified by the home of Mrs. Bertha Dutcher at 766 South M St. in Livermore. A recent survey shows there are 58 examples of this style within the city's original boundaries.

Searching for a home's roots

The first thing that comes to mind when you think of a particular city is probably a mental picture of its streets and buildings. Many cities are identified by a single landmark or distinctive style of architecture.

The tight rows of well-kept Victorians climbing the hills of San Francisco are widely - recognized, as are the crisp red-brick Colonial residences of Boston, the gleaming glass skyscrapers of Chicago or the vine-covered balconies of New Orleans' French Quarter.

Survey, photos pages 3 and 4

Livermore, too, has an architectural heritage which has recently been recorded and catalogued by the Livermore Heritage Guild. The results of a fall survey of historic structures within the town's original boundaries — about a square mile — will be featured in an exhibit at the Ecology Fair Saturday, April 23 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at The Barn on Pacific Avenue.

There you can pick up a description of Livermore's historic architectural styles, as well as a helpful guide on researching your own home's history. A color - coded map will show the distribution of each architectural style throughout the city, structure by structure.

"Recycle an old home" is the theme of the exhibit which proposes that Livermore residents find imaginative new uses for historic structures instead of destroying them.

"You can't really appreciate the value of an old home until you have the whole prespective," says Garrett Drummond who spear - headed the survey and tabulated results. "Perhaps a structure may be the only remaining, unmodified example of a particular style of architecture in Livermore."

Dubbing himself a "new oldtimer," Drummond says he was spurred to investigate Livermore's architectural heritage in 1960 soon after his arrival — the year the old Presbyterian church was torn down. After about a year and a half of serious research now, Drummond's long-range goal is to "establish a construction date for all Livermore historical buildings."

It's his way of binding himself to the community and finding roots for the 50,000 people who have come to call Livermore "home."

Sup. Raymond sees county car limits

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Even those in high places will be asked to hold with the new energy ethic.

Gone from the county will be the seemingly dominant trapping of high political office: the luxurious, gas-guzzling, semi-limo.

It's all part of freshmen county supervisor Valerie Raymond's push toward conservation and lowering the county budget, she said.

She wants a new board of supervisors' policy limiting elected officials' cars to something more in tune with the new ethic. Yesterday she called for a report from county administrator Loren Enoch surveying the current stable of county officers' autos and their dent in the county budget.

Elected officials, with the exception of judges, use almost any tupe of car they want, up to the "full-size" models, and the county picks up the tab.

Treasurer — Tax Collector Frank M. Krause, District Attorney D. Lowell Jensen and County Sheriff Thomas Houchins, for example, drive 1976 Chrysler Cardobas.

Assessor Don Hutchinson and Auditor — Controller Donald M. Parkins both drive 1973 Chrysler Newports. County Clerk Renee Davidson uses a 1973 AMC Ambassador from the county's car pool.

Raymond has a "temporary" Plymouth Duster while she waits for delivery of a "compact" Dodge Aspen. Supervisor Joseph Bort drives an "old" 1973 Mercury Marquis, he told the board.

Board chairman Charles Santana and supervisor Fred Cooper are changing over from the traditional.

Santana is using a county owned 1975 Oldsmobile Cutlass, while a lease is being drawn up on a new Chevrolet Caprice.

Cooper is changing from a 1975 Buick Electra to a new Chevrolet, he said.

Freshman supervisor John George wheels around in a 1970 Buick LaSabre from the county car pool. He said he hasn't given much thought to a county leased car.

Agency and department heads, on the other hand, currently are limited to "intermediate" size cars from the county pool.

They use the cars to get to and from work, but reimburse the county for commute costs.

Fringe area garbage OK asked county

OAKLAND — Pleasanton Garbage Service Inc. may get a little competition along the fringes of the city.

Charles Knowles of First Street in Pleasanton has written the county board of supervisors asking for a permit to run a collection service in the unincorporated lands surrounding the city.

Pleasanton Garbage Service now collects in the city as well as Sunol, Kilkare Manor, Foothill Road and east to Isabel Avenue. The firm, a veteran of 42-years of garbage collection in Pleasanton, currently is asking for a 36.6 per cent rate hike.

Knowles permit has been held up by the county health department "until the matter of franchise has been clarified or resolved," according to a department memorandum.

Permits are currently issued by the health department if county codes are met, but the question of a county franchise has never before been broached.

The board of supervisors has asked the county's Solid Waste Management Authority to review the novel request.

Pleasanton eyes deficit fiscal plan

PLEASANTON —Acting City Manager Alan Campbell showed the city council a $4.8 million budget which projects no tax increase last night.

However, the budget did not have any salary increases figured in negotiations still are going on with city employes.

Actually, the budget shows a deficit of $178,000, but Campbell and Finance Director Jim Walker listed some options which will make up for the deficit. They include using some of the $249,000 of reserves, transfer of $200,000 from federal revenue sharing, shifting part of the more than $300,000 in gas tax revenues or raising a city tax rate by the maximum allowable three cents, which would yield $45,000.

The city's tax base will be 14 per cent more valuable in the coming year, according to Walker. That means a rise from $131 million this year to an estimated $149 million in the next fiscal year.

DHPA waiver

DUBLIN —The Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) was last night denied a $582.80 waiver of fee charges from Valley Community Services District (VCSD) but the decision was later reversed.

Although turned down on an earlier request to waive VCSD fees for Heritage Center plan checking and inspection for water mains, sewer and fire, DHPA made a new pitch later in the meeting.

VCSD Director Lila Euler, who had earlier voted against the waiver, made a new motion asking that the waiver be allowed.

New park funds seen

Recommendation to spend $30,000 for the first improvement on the newly acquired 450 acres at Camp Parks was forwarded to the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors by park staff yesterday.

The board referred action on it to a meeting of the finance committee which meets Friday and sources close to the parks district said the allocation appears to be certain.

The money would finance construction of an entrance for the new Tasajara Creek Park.

Here comes budget

Pleasanton's preliminary city budget will make its debut at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

Preliminary reports indicate there won't be any drastic changes from last year when the council authorized a five cent tax increase. The city has only three cents left for a rise before it hits a ceiling imposed by state law.

The vote last year was 4-1 for the tax increase with Council Member Ken Mercer opposed. He had been joined earlier by Council Member Frank Brandes to cut the proposed budget to the point where there would be no tax increase.

One of their money - saving ideas was to investigate the possibility of dropping the lease on the City Council Chambers and conducting meetings in another facility already owned by the city.

County park fund split nears?

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Months of wrangling over $3.8 million in state park bond money inched one step closer to general agreement yesterday after county suprvisors offered a complicated compromise settlement between park districts and the cities.

The agreement, which must be approved by at least 10 cities or special districts in the county before it can be forwarded to the state, calls for a 15 — 85 per cent split between regional agencies and local government.

Livermore Area Recreation and Park District and the East Bay Regional Parks District will share the 15 per cent largese on a per capita cut.

Aditionally, $15,000 of the EBRPD money will go to the East Bay Municipal Utilities District for completion of an already approved trail system. LARPD is also included in the local government share.

The 85 per cent portion will be split among the 11 cities in the county, Valley Community Services District, the Hayward Area Recreation District, and LARPD based on population.

LARPD is included in both categories because it serves both municipal and regional recreation needs, said county supervisor Joseph Bort, author of the compromise.

But 5 per cent of the local cut must be taken off the top for preservation of local historical landmarks.

Board of supervisors chairman Charles Santana cast the lone dissenting vote. He had said he wanted the money split strictly on a per capita basis.

Bort said he expects approval from at least 10 agencies by next week's supervisors' meeting. The package then will be forwarded to the state.

If the county fails to make the May 1 deadline, the money will be frozen until next year.

No murder leads

San Bernadino police have no new leads to the killer of a 26-year-old woman stabbed with a 10-inch butcher knife March 30. The murderer apparently kidnapped the woman's two children, one of whom has cystic fibrosis and requires daily medical treatment.

The body of Beverly Wise, 26, was found in the living room of her Southern California home by her husband, Claude Wise.

Roy Summers of Livermore, ex-husband of the victim and father of their five-year-old daughter, was initially sought as a suspect in the case, but was released after police confirmed he was in Utah at the time of the murder. Summers, a carpenter with the Livermore school district, also successfully completed a lie detector test, police said.

Two of the woman's three children, Brandy Summers, 5, and Tiffany Wise, 2, are missing. A third child, an eight-month-old daughter, was found unharmed in the house.

Brandy Summers suffers from cystic fibrosis and requires medical medication five times a day. Despite flyers to doctors, hospitals and cystic fibrosis clinics alerting them of the case, no reports of the specialized treatment have come to light.

Springtown rescue— step two

Outgoing president Frances Kepple called it "the most important election in Springtown's history."

After a record turnout at the polls Monday night, the homeowners association decided in favor of leasing their arts and crafts building to the City of Livermore for use as a pro shop. It is hoped by city officials that the addition of the pro shop will attract more golfers to the 90 acre course and olve some of the financial problems there.

Public Works Director Dan Lee said that assuming approval of the lease by city council, $20,000 will be spent to "immediately start renovating" the existing building.

Lee also said the city will start developing a set of conditions to contract a golf pro to man the pro shop and snack bar. He said emphasis for selection of the pro will be placed on his ability to conduct business and give lessons at the course. The city is interested in a person to promote the course.

Previously the course has operated at a deficit because the lack of facilities discouraged a large turn out of golfers.

With the addition of the pro shop, Lee said there is a "good chance" the financial conditions will take a turn for the better. He said, "We've had from 18,000 to 22,000 rounds played per year at the course since the city took over its operation.

"With a pro shop, snack bar, and proper promotion the course could expect 25,000 to 30,000 rounds to be played," Lee said. Pending approval of the lease by city council, the pro shop is expected to be in operation some time this summer.

Survey identifies architecture in Livermore

PIONEER

The simple "salt box" shape of clapboard siding with narrow eves is a distinctive form rather than a true architectural style. Since it was brought to California by New Englanders in th 1850's, it is called "pioneer." It often has a "lean-to" porch with a shed-like roof and windows done in flat trim with no moulding. Most of the surviving examples in Livermore date from 1860 to 1890.

PIONEER OR SALT BOX

Example of early Livermore architecture, 691 South L St., is the home of Shelby Foss.

CARPENTER GOTHIC

Residence of the Davidsons at 679 South L St.

CARPENTER GOTHIC

Carpenter Gothic style typically has a steeply - pitched gables decorated with lacy bargeboards trimmed with elements called finials and pendants. The ornaments depended more on the whim of the builder than any other style. The Gothic revival took place between 1850 and 1880. The only easily recognizable Carpenter Gothic in Livermore is at 679 South L St. (See photo at left.)

ITALIANATE

The domestic Italianate style was quite popular in the 1870's and 1880's, although commercial Italianate remained architecturally important until the turn of the century. The earliest Italianate houses are cube-shaped, and characterized by tall, narrow windows, heavily bracketed cornices, and sometimes bay windows. The porch is usually a small portico with decorated brackets.

ITALIANATE

Rare example of unmodified style is found at 3376 First St.

The survey

Last October a crew of 14 volunteers, under the direction of Garrett Drummond, completed a walking survey of historical homes within the square mile originally incorporated as the City of Livermore. That area is bounded by Pine Street, Junction Avenue, Maple Street, Seventh Street, Livermore Avenue, College Avenue, Holmes/ First Street and P Street. All homes (excluding contemporary models) were identified according to architectural style, use and condition. Here is the basic count.

Queen Anne	58

Research your home

One of the pleasures of owning an old house is knowing its background. For the curious, several research sources are available, including the Livermore Public Library, which has local newspapers dating back to 1874 listing real estate transactions.

The Alameda County Recorder's Office in Oakland has an index on all titles, while others may find a library's architectural books helpful guides. Other methods include checking with the Livermore Fire Marshal, who has a set of 1917-1930 insurance maps, and the Livermore Heritage Guild has several knowledgeable members. Call 447-5475 or 447-9592.

Indian's Jewelry More Than Art

By David Smith

To the Rainbow Clan of the Miwuk Indians, the silver and turquoise jewelry they make is more than just beautiful pieces of art - it is an integral part of their life and their religion.

FOREMOST INDIAN ARTIST WILL DISPLAY WORK

Two of the clan's jewelry makers are Richard and Joy Rainbow. They will display the jewelry of the Rainbow Clan at the Gingham Corner April 20 thru 23; 10-5 p.m. at 500 Main St. and Neal in Pleasanton.

Living in the Tuolumne Indian Reservation near Tuolumne, the Rainbows create their jewelry in a workshop called "The Teepee" located in Tuolumne City Plaza.

There, 13 silversmiths work on jewelry designed not only to be decorative, but also to ward off evil spirits and bring to the wearer a great amount of healing, happiness and eternal peace.

To Richard Rainbow and his clan, these are not just symbolic goals — they are real goals that each craftsman actively seeks.

JEWELRY EXPRESSES WAY OF LIFE

"Before undertaking any new work" he says, "we consult our medicine man. After talking to the Grandfather Spirit, he will show us which stone should be combined with which piece of silver in order to bring the maximum good or healing to the person who will wear it." He says turquoise is a very "powerful" stone.

"It retains light and energy. When combined with silver and the good thoughts of the craftsman, it is transformed into a healing object."

Healing, in fact, is the underlying reason the Rainbows started making jewelry in the first place. "Silversmithing is not a traditional art with Miwuks," Richard explains, "My brother, Ted Bear Sr., and I are counselors working with alcoholic people. We found that by working with their hands — and their spirit — many Indian people can regain their pride and put down the bottle."

Today, the clan is not only teaching the art to alcoholics, it is also instructing other Indian people. "Each time a member of the clan shows an interest in learning silversmithing," Richard says, "he or she works in the shop and is tutored by one of the other members until he becomes a journeyman."

Richard points out that there is only one rule that students must abide by — "Be yourself."

"We instruct students not to copy the Navajo, Zuni or anyone else. This has had a startling effect on an industry that seems to be dominated by set styles and designs."

The Rainbow Clan's jewelry, therefore, is radically different. The stress on an individual approach means that no two pieces of jewelry are ever alike.

Although the Rainbows shun the traditional symbols of the Navajo and Zuni, they do utilize their own tribal symbols. Each symbol not only provides a backdrop on which to mount turquoise, but offers the wearer the gift of "medicine." For example, fashioned in the shape of a bear paw, a piece of Rainbow jewelry is said to bestow the strength and courage of the bear to the wearer. The shape of a turtle will give the owner added wisdom and a long life. The shape of an eagle feather offers good health.

But perhaps the greatest "power" of the jewelry rests not so much in its shape, but in the attitude of its maker or giver. "When we fashion a piece of jewelry," Richard explains, "we pour our spirit — our good thoughts — into it. So that forever, the stone and silver have a part of us locked into it." Sometimes, the Rainbow people will give their jewelry away. "We will tell you to wear it until it brings you balance (harmony). Then, some day, when you have this balance, you, too, can give it to someone who needs it more than you do. "It is like a rock dropped into a pool. The rings of "medicine" will spread out from the center until the whole world is encompassed by its embrace. In the end, the more we give, the more we will receive."

Learn to spot historical architecture locally

QUEEN ANNE

More informal than earlier Victorian architecture, the Queen Anne house of the 1890's sought uniqueness with an assymetrical floor plan, complex roofline and prominent gables. It is often identifed by its rounded corner towers. Queen Annes have bay windows which are often rounded and called "swell" bays. Other features include large porches, balconies, paneled or modeled chimneys and a variety of predominantly classical ornamental details. Porches feature delicately turned spindle work. Livermore's only example of a Queen Anne tower house is at 737 South M St.

QUEEN ANNE
Beautifully kept example at 1881 Sixth St.

SHINGLE

Although similar to the Queen Anne in shape and size, the shingle style displays a greater simplicity of detail. Walls and roof are distinctly covered with shingles, usually stained brown. The style was popular between 1890 and 1920. A row of shingle style homes in the 2400 block of Sixth Street is flanked by a Queen Anne at either end — a good study in contrast.

DERIVATIVE

In the early part of this century, a broad range of historical building styles were revived in domestic architecture. Together these are called Derivative and include styles such as Tudor Revival, Renaissance Revival and French Provincial. Often they were executed by builders who knew little of their sources and as a result they are primarily adaptations of an earlier style. In Livermore the City Hall and the Schenone Building on First Street, and Carnegie Building on Third Street are all examples.

CALIFORNIA BUNGALOW

California Bungalow was one of the first architectural styles to reflect the West Coast's informal mode of living. the bungalow home is usually a small informal structure, identified by its low-pitched roof, a broad gabled porch with massive tapered columns, and a clinker - bricker chimney. In addition to those constructed in stucco, many were built with narrow clap-board siding.

MISSION REVIVAL

This style is an acknowledgement of the California Spanish architectural contribution, and first appeared shortly after the turn of the century. It became popular in Livermore in the 1920's and 1930's. The style is characterized by stuccoed walls, tiled roofs and parapets, wrought iron work, and sometimes balconies or towers. Commercial buildings in Livermore still use the Mission Revival style, such as the Pacific Telephone building on Second Street, and the U.S. Post Office on South Livermore Avenue.

Excellent example is found at the corner of Fifth and K Streets.

Riding the rail

There will certainly be debate the next few months over that 21-mile stretch of Southern Pacific railroad track from Dougherty Station north of Pleasanton, through the San Ramon Valley to Concord.

The Times is keeping atuned to the issue and hopes residents along the 86-year old route will do so as well.

Southern Pacific has submitted an abandonment request on the tracks with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Traffic on the run has dwindled from 415 cars in 1973, to 123 cars in 1975, according to company spokesmen.

If SP is granted its wish, the debate will center around future use for the rail corridor. The sanitation department wants it for sewer lines. The park department says it will make a fine horse and bike and hiking trail. Caltrans thinks a commuter train service would be feasible...

Meanwhile, Danville Lumber Co. owner Pete Peterson doesn't want the tracks abandoned at all. His is one of four firms still served by the rail. If the trains stop, shipping costs will climb, he says.

A public discussion over the line's future was held last week in Concord. More are sure to be scheduled.

Carl Englund, a consultant hired by Caltrans, is planning a report on a new commuter link through the SP corridor which should be completed by May 1.

Englund has walked the entire length of the rail line "to see just what we're up against."

He will determine whether there are enough potential passengers to make commuter runs feasible.

A number of public agencies have their eyes on the San Ramon Valley rail line. The private sector, should likewise, keep in touch with the issue. Those SP tracks run through beautiful Contra Costa County real estate and back right up to hundreds of homes.

Certainly there will be broad interest in the future of a rail link opened in 1891, and is about to creak under the weight of its last iron horse.

Use it now

Use your library.

That's the word from the American Library Association during this, National Library Week.

It is the right time to reacquaint yourself, and introduce your children to a great cultural tool. And none too soon.

According to statistics, one-third of the U.S. population has never set foot in a library and most of those have no concept of other library services beyond book loans.

On the other hand, regular library use, according to a Gallup Poll, is related to high educational levels and employment success.

In most cases, library use among adults fosters interest in their children. Now, during Library Week, is a good time to establish patterns that will be of such value to youngsters throughout their lives.

It's also the occasion for everyone in the community to avail themselves of the myriad services offered at local libraries.

Branches in Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton offer extensive reference sections, and cooperative staffs willing to dredge up information you can't find yourself.

Special services for shut-ins are available, along with storybook classes for children.

The neighborhood library is also one of the best sources of information on community events and programs. Like a newspaper, it serves as a window to its locale, revealing glimpses of social and cultural fabric to its visitors.

National Library Week runs through Saturday. Before then visit your local branch. Special programs are probably under way to honor this special week. Your family will benefit, and so will you.

Clean it up

May is the month for remembering Mothers, for honoring the Law, and Now — for waging war on Litter.

Somehow it seems appropriate that we honor "Mother Earth" with "Anti Litter Month" while also toughening up our laws regarding those who junk up the place. Littering is one of the most childish offenses in a civilized society, and perhaps the most easily prevented.

Four million tons of garbage are produced each year just in California. It seems like half of it winds up on the streets, in the open fields, blowing aimlessly back and forth.

The problem is so great that State Legislators are contemplating stiffer fines, maybe even some mandatory jail terms for these junkies. They're also talking about "banning disposable bottles" and a lot of other nonsense.

It is not the container that's at fault; it's the idiot at the far end of that bottle, can or box.

We don't need an "Anti Litter Month." We do need a passionate dislike for people who throw their garbage around. And that includes business houses, stores, restaurants that won't spend ten minutes twice a day policing their own garbage cans, cleaning up their own mess.

"Be A Stoolie In May!" Turn in the junkie. When you see somebody's garbage all over the lot, call the cops. Why let some moron junk up your earth?

Hindsight/Foresight

Different gods

Is organized religion a ripoff?

This was the question addressed and answered in resounding fashion by a nationally-known speaker and the subject of a Sunday (April 17) feature in The Times.

The person we quoted in the article, Marjoe Gortner, was a fourth-generation preacher who first took to the evangelism circuit at age 4. But, as he recounts in lengthy fashion both in person and via the feature film "Marjoe," forsook organized religion, claiming it was not only hypocritical but a ripoff.

His opinions, and the responses they brought (from the audience at Skyline College in San Bruno) stand in stark contrast with a presentation we attended just a few days prior — former world mile record holder Jim Ryun and his wife, Anne, at Valley Christian Center.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect, and one that further sets the two apart, was Gortner's views on other "movements."

While Ryun's was a true testimony of Christian faith, Gortner's commentary was equal parts revelation and opinion.

Marjoe, in his present state, holds little respect for another man's God — less he be his own....." If you ask me what I believe in, basically I believe in myself...."

He also had comments for some of the popular "movements" of the day, including the "Moonies," a group that has been beaten to death with the media cudgel, buried, revived and given another avalanche of media overkill.

"When you're putting on a good show, you're messing with heads," Gortner opined in answer to a question on where - do you draw-the-line-between-brainwashing-and-a-good-show.

"It seems like the kids nowadays want to be dominated, for someone to say to them 'you're okay' ". The youthful, curly-topped former child evangelist said he sees the Rev. Sun Moon "as very dangerous, I don't like the man."

He had the following to say on other popular movements:

EST — I have respect for their methods and organizer, Werner Erhard.

The late Kathryn Kuhlman (well-known in Southern California through her television ministry) — A lot of her healing cases were documented...I would say a great majority of them.

Orange County — Oohh, my God!

Black churches — They're not as bigoted in their religion as a white audience. They are more up front about religion. But my theory is they've done a lot to perpetuate the rich-poor difference.

Current child evangelist Michael Lord — That little ripoff, he ought to pay me a fee!

Gov. Jerry Brown — I campaigned for him. I sort of filled-in when he couldn't make an appearance.

On his (Marjoe's) future — I have three films coming out this summer — $6 million film about Evil Knievel in which I have a part, "Sidewinder I," about motocross racing, and "Acapulco Gold."

Perhaps it might be said about Gortner that he now worships a different God.

And could anyone mistake what it might be.

Letters to the Times

Need heroes

Dave Weber, sports editor, The Times:

Congratulations on your article on Jim Ryun. This article was well written.

Our young people need heroes like Jim Ryun. They need to look up to individuals like him and the example he sets.

Keep those articles coming.

Foothill thanks

Editor, The Times:

Foothill High School would like to thank the many people from the Valley who donated items and books to the library in our initial drive. The library received two beautiful file cabinets, two typewriters and a number of books, plus many hours of volunteer labor. In addition to private donations, Foothill had the first choice of the unsold books at the AAUW book sale. Special thanks to Mrs. Sanford of Livermore, Dr. and Mrs. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Curtola, and Mrs. Geneva of Pleasanton, Mrs. Estabrook of San Ramon, and Mrs. Gibbert of Dublin for their exceptional donations, and of course to the AAUW.

Many paperbacks and hardcover books are still needed. The library is especially interested in acquiring more works of popular fiction, science fiction, westerns, automotive manuals, California, U.S. and World History, wildlife and art. Records in good condition and the covers of worn out ones are wanted.

The library committee is planning a flea market on Sunday, May 22 at Foothill to raise library funds. More information will be announced at a later date.

The gut issue

Editor, The Times:

The recent court trials, in which parents have tried to obtain custody over their offspring who have joined the Rev. Moon church, have generated a great deal of controversy over basic human rights such as freedom of worship, freedom of political activity, etc. All this is just a lot of smoke that hides and obscures the fire underneath.

The burning and gut issue in the case of the Moonies is that the Rev. Moon's church is not a religious organization. It is a refined, sophisticated form of human slavery. But the followers of Rev. Moon are kept in servitude, not by physical but by mental shackles. In "Roots" the blacks were kept from running away from slavery by chopping off their legs. In the Moon church the followers are kept from escaping their slavery by chopping off their mental, not their physical limbs.

This is a new, sophisticated way of keeping people in life-long servitude, but it is just as real, as cruel, and as reprehensible, as anything described in "Roots."

Fine art

Editor, The Times:

On behalf of ourselves and all the children who were able to participate in March's Youth Art Month, we want to thank all the wonderful, dependable volunteers who helped to gather, catalog, and mount for hanging, the more than nine hundred pieces of art work that made up this years display. Many thanks, too, to the teachers and aids who saw to it that the children's work was turned in and properly labeled so our job would bp easier.

The school district office was again helpful, and the merchants who let us use their windows and walls were most generous.

This event is sponsored by the Livermore Cultural Arts Council and their financial aid is most necessary and appreciated.

Conduct Code

Editor, The Times:

I believe your readers would appreciate hearing how their representatives in Congress worked for and voted for the new "Code of Conduct" bills which passed both houses of Congress after a long and difficult fight. There were many attempts made in committee and in both houses to weaken this reform legislation but Representative Pete Stark and Senator Alan Cranston remained firm in their support of the more stringent code of conduct for our legislators which was initiated by Common Cause," the peoples lobby in Washington".

This Code of Conduct calls for full financial disclosure, limitations on outside income, a ban on gifts from lobbyists, a ban on unofficial office accounts, and new regulations on franking privileges bycongressmen. Its passage is a triumph for all who are seeking to make our government more open to the people and free from control by special interests.

The next major reform to come before Congress will no doubt be that providing for Congressional Public Financing. If we, "The People", continue to show enough interest in seeing this kind of political reform become a reality, hlping to make our free election system more responsive to the people and less corrupt, such a bill could be passed in time for the 1978 congressional election. Now is the time to work for this.

round the town

Let it never be said that "media persons" fail to profit from their mistakes.

Fact is they make more profit from their goofs than most wage earners get from a hard day on the production line.

"All The World Loves A Sinner." America loves to see its sinners in print. Watergate has made millions for those who, belatedly, discovered "I WAS WRONG! — The startling, TRUE revelations by — —" The author is guaranteed a hundred thou in advances from the publisher; paperback rights are worth another quarter mil; if the confession is juicy enough to make a movie, the repentant author has sufficient income to retire ... "buy a small newspaper somewhere like I've always dreamed ... get back to working with people on a day - to - day, honest level."

Even when the sinner had no previous newspaper experience, he can make himself a bundle. John Dean wrote a book. His post - Watergate lament. The thing stunk. "We must be able to jazz this up somehow!" Dean's publisher lamented. They found a sure - fire ghost ... a guy who could take Dean's dribblings and turn them into socko prose.

The result is another best - seller on Watergate. Hollywood is bidding like crazy for the film rights. If Dean retires from the literary world after this one - time effort (and we pray he will) he can claim it all as a Capital Gain ... get a handsome tax break. He wasn't one of Dick Nixon's top legal advisors without reason!

Daniel Schorr pulled one of the great media goofs of all time. Got hold of some top - secret Pentagon papers ... couldn't convince his CBS - TV bosses to use them ... finally "leaked" them to a suburban newspaper in a sort of one - commentator - crusade to right America's wrongs.

Schorr now freely admits "I handled it all very poorly." Which is all America needs to know. "Give us Daniel!" they scream. And so Dan Schorr is paraded in lecture halls and universities across the land. Confessing his sins. Packing them in. Making a bundle.

Remember Ron Nessen? He was a presidential press secretary who saw sin at the highest levels. Jim Bort? One of the Fresno Bee's reporters who got caught reading over a court's private records, or something. Sander Vanocur? Sandy's working for the Washington Post these days ... "Media Critic" ... he must be an expert on journalist's sins.

Well, they all got together, folks. Schorr and Nessen and Bort and Vanocur. MEDIA '77 they call it. "The most exciting and interesting event for Northern California journalists ..." That's what the brochure claims.

Coming to San Francisco in May. The Hotel St. Francis, no less. THREE Big Days. Just $20 per. Includes lunch. Babysitting available.

"So, how come," you ask, "can such a high - powered panel of former sinners make it big when they just charge $20 per head, and throw in lunch?" Good question. Maybe it's because this Seminar is brought to us by a "non - profit, public interest institute founded in 1976 to promote a better understanding of the news media ..." etc. etc. Or maybe because it's co-sponsored by Stanford University and UC Berkeley ... "Seminar for Business and the News Media."

Either way, they'll pack 'em in. Mostly young, eager J-school types. The "I - could - have - told - you - so" kind. Anxious to glory in the sins of their founding fathers. And, being virutally sinless themselves, free to cast both the first and the last stone.

The agenda is fool - proof. "How to Deal With Hostile Reporters, Misquotes and Other Terrible Things." Saturday's highlight is "How to Handle New Sources and Stay Out of Jail." Whamo!!

But the session that will make the Seminar pay off, so to speak, is — "YOU TOO CAN BE A TV STAR." It's organized by an outfit called "Media Technique, Incorporated." ... using a "team of media professionals."

Ah yes, and choreography by Fred Astaire. Ochestrations by Fred Harris ... who is a sinner from the old school. But at least Fred Harris made us laugh with his confessed shortcomings.

The thought of Daniel Schorr's sad, sad face telling us "I did wrong ... but for good reason," and for three solid seminar'd days, is more than any working reporter can take.

But it's not more than the take by those errant newspersons ... the ones who saw the light just in time to profit from their mistakes.

How sweet it is.

Sinatra

'Ol Blue Eyes came back and 'Ol Green Eyes loved it.

And so did the rest of the sellout crowd of thousands who heard Frank Sinatra April 13 at the Circle Star Theater in San Carlos.

He was there other nights but that was the first time I had ever seen him "live and in color."

There was no disappointment attached to the meeting.

He was taller than I imagined he would be. We sat too far back for me to tell much else. Some friends of ours who sat closer said his age was showing.

I sympathized. Mine is too.

Other friends who had seen him at different times and places said he looked great — "thinner, younger, in better voice, etc."

To me, he looked broad shouldered, thin of haunch, free of paunch and totally distinguished in his impeccably tailored tux.

When he uncorked that unique Voice, the total package of talent, technique earned from hard work and practice, entertainment, good humor and disarming charm came flowing through.

He wooed the audience into pin-drop quiet moments, mellow nostalgia, funky finger-snapping, toe-tapping and two standing ovations.

At times you could tell his vocal cords had been refined by time — certain raspiness — a hint of fatigue. But it wasn't a flaw. It was a mellowing like the fine wine he sings about in "When I Was Seventeen." (He didn't sing that song that evening.....my only disappointment.)

His pitch, timing and control were still top of the line.

He sang as well in hushed tones as in decibels of barrel-house belting proportions — plus every volume in between. He glided up and down octaves on key with incredible timing.

He entertained for an hour or more. From the moment he was escorted up to the stage flanked by six bodyguards until they made the return trip, Sinatra was IT. That's hard work in anybody's language.

He didn't just stand there trying to impress people with the image of who and what he is. He gave them their money's worth plus a buck or two to boot.

Midway through the performance, he took a breather onstage. A small table had been set up with water, ice, brow-mopping equipment, an ashtray plus what some folks said was a small glass of wine. He toasted the audience's health and good fortune.

Although adrenalin appeared to flow through the Voice's veins a bit faster after that, it was certainly more than a modest amount of wine causing it. He and the audience began responding to each other in that magical way that sometimes happens. He had been super before. Now he began "cookin' " special.

At one point during a sweet, melodic instrumental interlude, he broke into an impromptu ballet-type dance step. That unexpected bit brought down the house.

He pi-zazzed his way through old and new songs, happy and blue songs.

Young and not-so-young women oooh-ed and ahhh-ed as he announced which song he would sing next. They didn't reach the swoon-pitch of yesteryear. There was a new, more solid mood present. It was like a reflective sigh from a society that was thanking Sinatra for momentarily taking their minds off of life's burdens.

There was also a touch of "we identify with you, Frank since you've been through trouble just like us."

Both Sinatra and the audience had matured — beautifully.

Nostalgia sat front row center.

The jokes and humorous remarks he made were sharp, funny and in good taste. (It's a shame Pat Henry, the comedian who preceded Sinatra, could not have done the same. His profuse profanity obliterated what could have been an exceptionally funny routine.)

Sinatra graciously acknowledged his orchestra and pointed out key musicians who had traveled with him before. It was a kind gesture.

But he got the charm of the evening award when he stepped down off the stage to accept one red rose from a lovely brunette dressed in black. She got a hug and a kiss back.

Bodyguards had been busy all evening gently removing ladies who came to stand at the edge of the stage. Some had flowers. Others just stood and admired. The lady in black had made two attempts to hand-deliver her rose.

Sinatra carried the rose back on stage and gently placed it in his water glass.

The young lady in black floated off toward cloud nine.

The audience was there to meet her. They had been there all evening.

Berry's World

"Before we begin, I just want to tell you, I thought some of your itemized deductions were an absolute riot!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: After a recent divorce that was quite bitter and left me a mental wreck, I thought I would have time to readjust and recover. However, a new problem has arisen — in the shape of a friend's husband. He's taken to popping in at odd times, just to see how things are coming along, he claims. Yet invariably the talk turns to sex and, though he hasn't tried anything yet, I can forsee what he has in mind. Who needs this sort of hassle? — F.M.

DEAR F.M.: It's unfortunate that at a time when you need solitude and a chance to think things through, you have to be exposed to the unwanted attentions of someone else's husband. There's a decided psychological lure that widows and divorcees exert on men of their acquaintance. The mystique of the manless woman is too much for many Don Juans to resist. Unquestionably, the old macho attitude figures heavily in their reasoning.

Your best defense will come from reserve. Impress on the man in question that you value your privacy and, although you appreciate his consideration, you would much rather call on him if the need arises. Play it cool and in time even the hottest pursuer should get the message. If he proves too dense, slight hints that his wife might like to know of his attentions should dampen his ardor.

How deeply you wish to become involved and when, of course, are matters of your own choosing. But when you once again enter the social scene, remember that unattached women in your divorced state are considered fair prey by married males whose usual concern is not you but their own vanities. Don't panic — you're not alone. You're your own mistress, you don't have to become anyone else's.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a marital three - time loser. My first two husbands were homosexual; my last, an alcoholic. Now I'm in love with a guy who seems too good to be true. As far as I can see, he would make an ideal husband. I'd like to get married again, but I don't know if I could stand another failure. — M.G.

DEAR M.G.; Three strikes are counted as out only in baseball, you shouldn't be ejected from the game. There's absolutely no reason you should break up your present relationship and give up. However, you should give careful consideration to what you expect from a new marriage and what factors led you to select your former spouses.

My guess would be that you are attracted to men you can dominate in some way. Such domineering behavior indicates a basic insecurity within you that must be eliminated before you can establish harmonious relations with someone else.

More importantly, you must recognize where you have made mistakes in the past. Compare your new love with your former husbands — their similarities, their differences. Honest discussion between you and your intended is essential.

Finally, be sure you are not responding to your former failures by becoming infatuated with a man you consider "too good to be true." There's a real possibility that the intensity of your emotions is blinding you to his faults. This may lead to unrealistic expectations and eventually to a deeper sense of failure if they don't materialize.

We all learn From our mistakes — even three - time marital losers.

An echo is a sound we hear after it is reflected from a wall or cliff.

Sonar is a detecting device that uses underwater echoes to measure depth and to locate underwater objects.

But sonar usually uses supersonic sound — sound much too high for us to hear.

Sonar beams the sound waves into the water. Underwater objects reveal their location and size by bouncing the sound waves back to the sonar.

The distance to the object is found by measuring the time taken for the echo to return.

Depth-finding sonar is used to locate underwater channels, and can even locate schools of fish.

It also helps scientists tell how deep the sea is and map the rough ocean floor.

Such animals as the porpoise and bat use a kind of natural sonar. The porpoise's keen ears pick up echoes from the clicking sounds it makes to locate the fish.

And bats fly in the dark by means of echo sounding.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know something about the pancreas and what it controls in the body, if you please.

My husband has a calcifying pancreas. He drinks quite a bit of beer. He was told by our doctor that he was not to drink a drop of any kind of alcohol, but I am unable to convince him to stop. I am embarrassed to say that he has loose bowels (very loose). He weighs 140 pounds and is 6 foot tall. He is extremely nervous.

I have talked to him nicely and I have scolded him and nothing helps. I told him that I would write to you for information on the hazards involved.

DEAR READER — The pancreas is an important organ in our ability to digest food. It is located just below the stomach and attached to the first part of the small intestine. It is from four to six inches long. The gland in animals is often used for sweetbreads.

There are two parts of the gland, the tissues that form pancreatic juice (we form from one to three quarts a day) and the small islets of Langerhans seeded throughout the pancreas that form insulin.

The pancreatic juice drains into the small intestine through a tube that is joined to the common bile duct. The bile and pancreatic juice mix together with the partially digested food from the stomach.

The pancreatic juice contains the enzymes that accomplish most of the breakdown of starch from various carbohydrate foods. It also contains the enzymes that break down the proteins into amino acids so they can be absorbed through the intestine. And it contains the enzymes that break down fat. So, most of the food we eat must be acted upon by enzymes from the pancreas before it can even be absorbed to do us any good.

Failure to break down food, particularly the fat, leads to diarrhea and large foul-smelling stools. Part of your husband's problem here may be from his pancreas.

The pancreas may have a few small or even larger calcifications in it without being significantly damaged. However, I presume from your letter that your husband does have damage. How much trouble he has, or will have, depends entirely on how much damage there is to the pancreas.

Many people have disease of the pancreas and never drank a drop of alcohol, but alcohol is definitely damaging to the pancreas. Your doctor was 100 per cent correct in saying your husband should not drink a drop. It is a matter of life or death for him and his pancreas will only get worse as long as he continues to drink.

Opening lead — 6 ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a rather simple Trezel-Reese hand. Simple, but one that many players miss because they aren't going to waste an ace when they can win a trick with a 10.

South follows with dummy's five of diamonds at trick one. East plays the nine and if South wins the trick with the 10, he may play the hand for a long time. But he won't make nine tricks unless the defense really slips.

You see that South will go after clubs and East will hold back his ace until the third lead. South will wind up with seven or maybe eight tricks.

If South is a generous type and wins the first diamond with his ace, the sun will shine, the birds will sing and the rubber will be over.

There will be no way for East and West to keep South from getting to dummy with the queen of diamonds and he will score four clubs, two diamonds and at least three other tricks.

Angry blasts at handicap protest

HAYWARD — While some physically handicapped people are preparing to move their protest against architectural barriers from state to federal level, others stay home fuming over the whole idea of such "abhorrent" demonstrations.

"Such actions are setting us back 50 years by recreating the image of us standing on street corners selling apples and holding out a tin cup," said Alice P. Johnston. She is Executive Director of the Self Dependence for the Handicapped Resource Center, Inc. in Hayward, California.

Residents from San Ramon Valley are involved in the Center.

Johnston's organization is a member of the California Association of the Physically Handicapped, Inc.

Johnston said she did not believe in the emotionalism protestors were striving to generate.

"We want sympathy for our plight caused by barriers but not for the handicapped people themselves," she said. "We are just beginning to gain some dignity and those protestors are blowing the whole thing. If they must demonstrate, let them demonstrate only for awareness of the problem."

She said her Center was already feeling negative backlash from the protest.

"We don't want people feeling sorry for us. We want equal rights and equal opportunity."

Johnston said Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act would give the handicapped those rights and opportunities if it was correctly amended and implemented.

The Section states, "no otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States shall solely by reason of his handicap be excluded from the participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

"That really packs a wallop," said Johnston. "It was hooked on to the end of the Rehabilition Act and nobody realized the financial impact it could have it if was carried out as stated. It needs amending — but only after receiving input from the handicapped."

She said the way it reads now, even light houses and coast guard stations would have to be be reworked.

"That's not realistic," Johnston said. "Social security offices, post offices, hospitals and other places primarily used by handicapped are what need attention."

She said it took five years to get the rehabilitation law passed and four years to implement it this far.

"The presidents and officials in office during that time should have taken action. We cannot expect those in charge now to wade through 167 pages of material and digest their contents in a hurry. A hasty decision on their part could wreck all we've worked for. And protestors are apt to cause such a quick action through peer pressure."

She said she hoped Joseph A. Califano, Jr., the new secretary of Health Education and Welfare (HEW),stood his ground, took time to receive input from the handicapped and got the job done right. He plays a key role in rehabilitation action, according to Johnston.

Income tax for county considered

Lehser News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The spectre of a county income tax was brought up today by Supervisor James Kenny, Richmond.

Kenny said while the county has never had an income he believed that "we should move away from the property tax."

He added that supervisors should "take a real close look" at other methods of taxation.

Supervisor Warren Boggess, Concordd, asked Arthur Will, county administrator, to have the county staff prepare analyses of pending state legislation on property tax relief.

Boggess said time should be set aside on each Tuesday's agenda for the board to receive the information.

Boggess said "Maybe we would want to express support of one of these bills."

Fishing Club has big derby

In the Bag

John Robinson and Don Salmi report that the LLLRA Fishing Club will sponsor a big bass derby on May 6 and 7.

The derby will start at 5:00 p.m. and close with a weigh - in at Bethel Island at 7:00 p.m. on Saturday, the 7th.

Card holders in LLLRA and their families are eligible to enter the competition. There will be prizes for the largest bass (striper), largest catfish, and the largest sturgeon. Door prize will be a CB radio.

These fishing derbies provide an excellent chance to take part in one of the best fishing competitions you'll find.

Terry Ludlow, chairman of the Running Deer Committee, has given out the results of the last in a series of running deer shoots at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club. Following are scores in the various events.

Distinguished Class - Hank Harkness of Eagle Rock, 38; Cal Rowe of Eagle Rock, 34.

Master Class - Jim Banta, of Eagle Rock, 43; Juan Gonzales of Tri - City, 42.

Expert Class - Bob Keller of Livermore, 39; Layton Ford of Bay Sportsmen, 29.

Sharpshooter Class - Earl Dye of Bay Sportsmen, 30; Andy Christenson, Jr., of Tri - City, 29.

Marksman Class - Bud Battencourt of Fremont, 25; Gil Quilici of Bay Sportsmen, 23.

Sure some fine scores turned in. After looking at the Master and Expert Classes, it would seem that there will be some up - grading for next year's competition.

The six clubs represented, listed alphabetically, finished the season with the following overall points: Bay Sportsmen, 529; Eagle Rock, 748; Fremont, 517; Livermore - Pleasanton, 697; Tri - City, 622 and Sacramento, 405. The Sacramento Club was not present at all shoots.

Cal Rowe, skipper of the Eagle Rock Club, remarked before the start that he bet his club was going to be the top scorer. He was so right!

The five best shooters of the Eagle Rock Team were Cal Rowe, score 157; Hank Harkness, 147; Al Ramsey, 139; Rich Johnson, 131; and Jim Banta, 122. They are a very tough team to beat!

Bill Elschold won the Class II Off Hand Rifle Shoot. Bill holds an "Expert" rating at the running deer.

Thirteen shoot - offs were held at the Iron Chicken Shoot! Carl Mossinger stated that the wind was sure in favor of those chickens; and the standing position with no sling or anything to help steady the rifle with that wind was a real chore.

At the end of the series, the local club awards a lapel pin to the high shooter (one event) of the year.

Hank Harkness was the winner of the pin this year. Hank turned in a score of 50 out of a possible 60. You'll notice he is a member of that Eagle Rock Club.

Art Monace apparently lost his knife while sturgeon fishing the other evening. They say he was demonstrating how good he is at throwing a knife, and somehow it flipped overboard, never to be seen again. Incidentally, John Severa caught the only keeper.

Don't forget the 31st Annual Barbecue at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club the first Sunday in May. Lots of good food, including steaks, and entertainment. Skeet shooting, trap shooting, pistol, off hand rifle, and iron chicken shoots will be going on. So come on out; bring your own squad and see who wins the linguisa or bacon. I'll see you there!

An interesting bit of news has just been released by the Department of Fish and Game (DFG).

Siskiyou County's Iron Gate Reservoir is providing the best trout fishing in its history, thanks to some steelhead trout that didn't make the grade at a hatchery last year.

The DFG said fishermen have been landing bright, silvery trout weighing up to a pound each at the Klamath River reservoir in recent weeks. The fish apparently are those planted as 3 to 4 inch yearling steelhead a year ago.

Gene Arnold, manager of Iron Gate salmon and steelhead hatchery, said more than 100,000 steelhead were planted in the reservoir last year after the undersized fish were routinely graded out of the stock of yearling steelhead slated for planting in the Klamath River.

Arnold said the DFG decided to try the experimental plant — which was duplicated with a plant of 140,000 yearlings again this spring — rather than release the fish into the river to compete with their larger, more desirable kin.

Previous attempts to establish a trout fishery at Iron Gate using hatchery rainbow trout have failed because the fish have succumbed to an indigenous Klamath drainage fish disease known as ceratomyxa. The young steelhead, which are progeny of native Kalmath fish, have natural immunity to the disease, the department said.

Ex-Ram assistant

Meyer new Niner mentor

SAN FRANCISCO — Los Angeles Ram assistant Ken Meyer was named Tuesday to be the new head coach of the San Francisco 49ers.

Meyer is a former 49er assistant coach and has been offensive coordinator of the Rams for the past four years.

He succeeds Monte Clark, who was fired earlier this month by Edward J. DeBartolo Jr., the 49ers owner.

"I am very impressed with Ken Meyer and his credentials," DeBartolo told a news conference. "We have high hopes for his future with the 49ers."

DeBartolo said 49er general manager Joe Thomas had interviewed three or four people in the last two weeks and made a final decision following a three-hour meeting with Meyer Tuesday morning.

"Our goals are to give the fans an aggresive hard-hitting football team and an exciting and interesting team," Meyer said.

Meyer, 51, coached at his alma mater, Denison College, in Ohio, at Wake Forest, at Florida State and Alabama from 1952 to 1968, when he joined the 49ers for a year under Dick Nolan.

He moved to Weeb Ewbank's New York Jets in 1969 and stayed for four seasons until joining Chuck Knox at Los Angeles. Knox and Meyer were both assistants at Wake Forest.

CLark, who led the 49ers to an 8-6 record in his only season, had been given a contract by the previous owners giving him responsibility for all facets of the team operation.

The new owners, however, wanted to give Thomas the final say over all but actual coaching chores and Clark was fired whan he turned down a re-designed coaching job.

Coincidentally, Meyer bought his home in Redwood City while a 48er assistant from Monte Clark, a Cleveland Brown offensive tackle working as a real estate agent during the off-season.

Knox said, "We are very, very happy for Kenny. It's the dream of every NFL assistant to land a head job and we know Kenny will do well.

"I am not only losing a valuable assistant, but a good friend as well because Kenny and I have worked together most of the time since 1959," Knox added.

"He is greatly responsible for the Rams' productive offense, which led the NFC in points scored in 1976," Knox said. "He deserves a fair share of credit for the Rams' 44 - 11 - 1 record over the past four season."

Fergon's 72 leads Ping Golf Classic

Vicki Fergon fired the one and only par round of the tournament's first two days to take over the lead in the $2125 Ping Golf Classic heading into this morning's final round at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton.

Fergon's 78 Monday left her four shots behind early co-leaders Marieanne Stangeland and Toni Black, both of whom remain in the running for the $450 winner's share. Yesterday, Fergon birdied the 115-yard fourth hole and the 315-yard 18th to offset bogies at two and ten.

Canada's diminutive Carol Dawson was close behind yesterday at 73 and crept to within a stroke of Fergon. Joining her in second was Donna Davis.

Dawson opened with a two-over 39 on the front side of Castlewood's lopsided Hill Course, before smoking to a one-under 34 on the way in to miss out on the $75 daily round money by just one shot.

Although she opened with a five on the tenth hole, everything clicked for Dawson on the rest of the back nine as she birdied the 425-yard 11th and the 298-yard 13th, before parring her way in.

Davis, meanwhile, missed a chance to take the lead. With a 75 Monday, she started yesterday's round just one back and ended it the same way as the leaders fell into third and fourth.

Donna, from Killeen, Tex., breezed out in 37, but bogeyed the 12th and 14th before doubling on the par-4 15th.

Still, she's running higher than Black and Stangeland, who ran into trouble after sharing the lead at 74 Monday.

Black and Stangeland both shot 39-40-79 yesterday.

Protecting their positions as potential money winners in today's final round will be, in addition to the players already mentioned, Shannon Johnson (155), Vicki Tabor (156), Sue Parker (159), Ann Dana (161) and Ingrid Gallo (161).

Tabor, from Waco, Tex., picked up four strokes from her opening round 80 and is still a longshot for a win, just six strokes back.

Dana, who won the valley's last women's mini-tour event at San Ramon National two weeks ago, also improved her standing, shooting a respectabe 77 after a dismal 12-over 84 on Monday.

Cowan, Arnaudon on Contra Costa team

Dave Cowan of Monte Vista and San Ramon's John Arnaudon are the only East Bay Athletic League players named to the 1977 Contra Costa County All-Star football team.

Contra Costa will play Alameda County August 20 at Diablo Valley College. If DVC's new astroturf is not installed in time the game will be played at Antioch's Eells Field.

Cowan, a 6-5 split end, was one of the main reasons for Monte Vista's improvement last season. Arnaudon was selected as a wide receiver - defensive back but can also play quarterback.

College Park and North Coast Section 4-A champion Pinole Valley were the only teams with three players selected.

Pinole Valley landed quarterback - defensive back Mike Bradeson, receiver Brad Anderson and guard - linebacker Walt Leach on the squad. The Falcons, Diablo Valley Athletic League champions had running back - defensive back Dane Lance, fullback Stu Reuter and guard - tackle Mike Huff picked for the squad.

A's fall, 5-4

It was the type of a game a young club needs to win to gain confidence.

So that's why Jack McKeon, the Oakland A's good - natured manager, took his team's 5-4 loss to the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday harder than usual.

After all the A's had gone ahead 4-3 in the bottom of the eighth on a pair of two-run homers by Earl Williams and pinch hitter Rich McKinney after two were down.

Then in the ninth, the Milwaukee team which leads the American League East following a sweep of the once - respected New York Yankees, got a gift run from the A's

As McKeon was to say later, "We had that poor guy (Dan Thomas) out twice but we just couldn't hang on to the baseball. Maybe we should have changed the ball, it must have had grease on it."

Thomas definitely proved to be the fly in the ointment as far as the A's were concerned. He pinch hit for Charley Moore and slammed a triple to right center scoring Jack Heidemann with the tying run.

Lefty Pablo Torrealba, who took over the mound duties from reliever Dave Giusti after Thomas' triple, got another pinch hitter, Steve Brye to bounce one to third sacker Wayne Gross. Gross fired the ball to A's catcher Manny Sanguillen but the ball squirted loose and Milwaukee had a fourth straight win.

The ball is in Mike Daugherty's mitt for California, and Livermore's Kevin Fitzpatrick is a world away, but somehow he managed to get back to the base, being called safe on this play in the Cal - Livermore game yesterday. The 'Pokes won, 6-1.

Palmer slam snuffs Bears

Tim Palmer's biggest hit of his baseball career turned the flow of a baseball game 180 degrees yesterday afternoon.

The tall Livermore outifelder, whose bat is just now beginning to pop, cracked a grand slam home run with two out in the fourth inning to key a 6-1 triumph over California in Livermore.

In crusing to their third consecutive win, the 'Pokes broke another three - game win streak the Grizzlies had going. Livermore is 4-3, while Cal is now 3-3. Cal's May rematch with EBAL leader San Ramon accounts for the odd game difference.

Had Palmer not hit the slam, the complete momentum of the contest would have been siding with the Grizzlies nad pitcher Larry Walters.

Walters was deceptively effective on the mound, keeping the 'Poke hitters off balance and not even allowing a hit until Charlie Bockover led off the fourth with a bouncing single up the middle.

Dave Dearborn was plunked on a 3-2 pitch by Walters to put two men on, while Cary Dean laced a sharp single to left to load the bases, Bockover holding at third.

Walters got tough at this point, getting cleanup hitter Kevin Fitzpatrick to pop out to third and making Bob Tarte chase a curve ball in the dirt for two quick outs.

However, Palmer met head on with a Walters offering and smacked it to the opposite field, right - center, clearing the bases while the Cal outfielders chased the ball through the fenceless Livermore field. Palmer beat the throw home to complete the granddaddy of them all.

Livermore hurler Jeff Benton, who has pitched fine all season but without offensive support from his teammates, scattered four hits to even up his EBAL slate at 2-2.

The only run he gave up was unearned, coming in the first inning as the Grizzlies, notoriously known as a first - blood ballclub, etched a run across on one hit.

Pat Fahey reached on an infield error and Walters walked with one out. Chuck Cary then smacked a solid line - drive single to center, scoring Fahey. Designated hitter Tracy Nodlinski hit into a double play to end the threat.

Jeff Bernacil added a two-run single in the sixth inning after reliever Chuck Cary walked Fitzpatrick, Palmer and gave up a single to Tarte.

The Cowboys were extremely frugal on the day, leaving just two runners on base, and those weren't until the sixth.

Cal left four men on base and had their best opportunities jinxed by a pair of double plays.

MV routs Falcons

Proving that hitters are hitters no matter what the conditions, the Monte Vista Mustangs ripped nine singles in the sixth inning en route to eight runs and coasted to a 12-3 win over the Foothill Falcons yesterday in Pleasanton.

The win kept the Mustangs within sight of league - leading San Ramon, while Foothill maintained its hold on last place in the East Bay Athletic League.

Monte Vista snapped a two - game losing streak behind righthander Craig Robinson but for a while it looked like it would be anything but easy. Two Mustang errors in the clutch allowed three Foothill runs to score and starter Rick Rosenbach had allowed only six Mustang hits through five innings.

But then Steve Jayko and Kevin Jones stung solid liners into center off Rosenbach to start the sixth and a bunt by Mike Cockerton was played into a single by the Foothill infield. That was the only cheap hit of the inning.

Brad Miller ripped another liner, and Virgil Ridge came into pitch for Foothill. Robinson greeted him with a smash to left, and after a strikeout, John Hicks drove home two runs with a single. Ken Krey followed with another hard - hit single and then he and Hicks executed a neat double steal, with Hicks scoring on the front end.

After Ted Helgans got yet another single, ending Krey to third, Monte Vista ran another double steal and Krey didn't even have to slide as he scored.

Jones added his second single and third hit to plate the eighth run of the inning and the only question that remained was whether the wind would blow the backstop away before the game could be completed.

Wicks gains first win as Dons edge Mats

It was a long time coming but Amador's Rob Wicks finally picked up his first East Bay Athletic League victory as the Dons clipped visiting Granada, 5-3 yesterday.

Wicks, who made the all-EBAL team last year had lost his first three league starts this season. However, yesterday he went the distance and was tough when he had to be.

The win gives Amador Valley a 3-4 EBAL mark and Granada dropped to 4-3.

A big four-run inning in the third stanza gave the Dons a lead they never gave up.

After Bob Koopman struck out to open the inning Sam Jorgensen reached first on a throwing error. Mike Hoff layed down a perfect bunt to sacrifice Jorgensen and the lanky first baseman went all the way to third. Granada pitcher Kevin Gosney then threw a pitch which catcher Tim Shatswell let get away from him. The catcher then threw the ball to Gosney who stood ready to tag Jorgensen out but the Mat pitcher dropped the ball and Amador had its first run.

A walk and a double by Mike Connelly and a triple triples by Chris DePrater and Wicks brought home three more runs.

The Matadors scored their first run in the next inning on three straight singles but Amador Valley came back to score its final run in its half of the inning.

A fielders' choice and a single by Hoff scored walk George Ellard with the fifth run.

The Mats made things more interesting in the fifth when they tallied their Final two runs.

After Mark Davis struck out and Vance Rushing flied out Shatswell singled and Gosney smashed a triple to center to score the second Granada run. A single by Bob Parness scored Gosney with the final Matador run.

The Matadors opened the seventh with a brief rally but Wicks set it down.

Davis, who was the third Granada pitcher, belted a single. However, Wicks got Rushing to hit the ball to Bill Bevilicqua at shortstop who turned the at shortstop. Bevilicqua tagged second and threw to first for a close double play. Shatswell then singled but Gosney, who went to left field after being relieved in the fourth, struck out to end the contest.

Wicks fanned eight batters and walked only three. Davis was outstanding in relief, striking out the only three batters he faced.

SR nips Gaels

You never would have known there was a water shortage in Danville.

In the sixth inning of yesterday's East Bay Athletic league baseball game between San Ramon and Dublin, the automatic sprinklers went on down the right field line ... and on ... and on.

And then San Ramon seemingly headed for its first loss of the season, rallied for four runs in the last of the seventh to edge the Gaels, 6-5.

"We have great competitors," exclaimed Wolves' coach Rick Steen.

And the Wolves were particularly competitive in the seventh. They had to be.

John Arnaudon, who Steen says has improved considerably since day one, singled sharply into left field plating both Joey Pappalardo and Greg Bishop to tie the game at 5-5.

Then Paul Fisch grounded to Sean Mays at short, but Mays in his understandable rush underthrew first base while Tim Rosgen scored the go ahead and winning run.

And San Ramon remains undefeated. By a game and a half over Granada and Monte Vista, too.

"We've worked really hard to get where we are," said Steen. "At times we lost our concentration but we came through."

And Eric Austad was one individual who seemed to always come through for the Wolves. He did yesterday. Impressively, too.

Austad came in for relief of starter Tom Milner in the fourth inning, and the smooth throwing righthander checked the Gaels on one hit the rest of the way.

"Eric did a good job for us today," remarked Steen,

Little League round-up

Early burst gives Cubs win

Six teams, three each dubbed the Cubs and Padres, played to a win apiece and a tie in Pleasanton National Little League action last Monday.

In a Major league contest, the Cubs jumped off to a three run lead in the top of the first inning and went on to defeat the Padres, 4-2. The pair of Padre tallies also came in the first frame, with the Cubs picking up an insurance run in the second.

From there, the fine pitching of winner John Ayres and Padre reliever Jeff Wilson took over and neither team scored.

The Padres got revenge in a "AA" game, pushing across 10 runs in a second inning outburst and coasting home to an easy 15-0 crushing of the Cubs. Jim Stevenson had two hits and a pair of RBI for the Pads to pace the offense.

The pitching victory went to Tony Fisher who combined with Antonio Victorio for the shutout. John Engel had a fine stint on the hill in relief for the Cubs.

In a game marred by numerous errors and walks and eventually shortened to three innings by darkness, the Cubs and Padres of the "AAA" division played to a 5-5 tie.

Padre hurler Tim Meier allowed just two hits despite the five runs, but the story of the Pade offense is even more strange. The Cubs sent two pitchers to the mound, Scott Ogle and Bob Anderson, and neither of them gave up a hit to a Padre batsman. All of the Padre runs were scored via either a walked batter or an error on the part of the Cub defense.

Livermore National

Brian Ferrirea got the win after coming in as a reliever in the second inning as V. Ridolfi topped J Sports Lettering, 7-4.

Mark Thompson and Tim Sargison each had three hits and Ron Mueller, two.

In the minors, Rodney Hunter had two hits, including a home run, and knocked home three runs as Family Tree clipped the Forester's, 15-14.

Wade Hardwick had a trio of safeties for the winners while center fielder Gregg Ziegler made a superb catch .

In the farm league, Jeff Bosma had two hits and Donald Paynter another as Financial Savings dropped Straw Hat Pizza, 19-18. John Pagagnola was the winning pitcher.

Losing pitcher Donald Lucas atoned with three hits while David Iversen had two.

Derrick Norton doubled while Skippy Lucas, D. J. Davison and winning pitcher Dominic Regas all singled to give Del Valle Auto Parts a 12-10 win over Calahans.

Bob Gregson, Regas and Eric Miller alll hurled well for the Parts while Lucas, Davison and Miller shone in the field.

Calaghans' Kevin Rielley ripped a triple.

Hansen's Tots 'n' Teens exploded from a 6-6 tie with 11 seventh inning runs to club United California Brokers , 17-6.

Oliver Thompson, who also doubled in two runs, was the winning pitcher.

EBAL softball

SR tops Dublin

San Ramon High School retained top spot in the East Bay Athletic League softball standings yesterday by downing the Dublin Gaels 7-4 at Dublin. The Wolves are 3-0 for the season. The Gaels are 1-2.

San Ramon scored all of their runs in the first four innings, and Dublin pitcher Kathy Crowder gave up only one base hit in the next three innings.

Crowder gave up a total of seven hits, walked nine, and struck out one.

Winning pitcher Janet Raventos gave up five hits in the game, walked only two, and struck out three.

Although San Ramon outhit and outran Dublin, the team was plagued with catching and throwing errors, tallying eight to Dublin's two.

The Dublin defense tightened after the fourth inning, and was capped by a spectacular double play in the seventh by centerfielder Cheryl Thompson and first baseman Joanne Callender.

Leading the offense for San Ramon was first baseman Sandi MacNeill with three RBI's and a triple in the fourth inning. Third baseman Julie Blow scored two runs as well as driving in one. She also had a base hit in the first inning. Shortstop Barabara Huddleston played a fine defensive game as well as offensive. She scored two runs and had a base hit in the second inning.

First baseman Joanne Callender played convincingly for Dublin with one run, a base hit, and two RBI's. Leftfielder Kathy Bukowatz scored one run, drove in one run, and was the first on base with a hit for the Gaels.

Scoring 14 runs in the first four innings alone, Amador Valley whipped Granada, 20-8, in other EBAL play.

Amador scooted off to a 5-0 lead in the top of the first, but the home team kept it close through one inning, striking back for three runs in the bottom of the opening frame. The tightness of the game was shortlived, however, as Amador made it 10-3 after three innings. The teams split eight runs evenly in the fourth, and the football-like score was 14-7. From there Amador coasted easily, ending the game with another four runs in the final inning.

Jane Kuhns collected four of the winners' 19 hits. Kuhns had three singles and a big home run, while Debbie Oxsen and Susan Aafeat each reached safely three times on singles.

For Granada, Lynn Kranich pounded out four hits, including a double and three singles, while Lynn Bousilman had a double.

Bobby Sox

Royals smash Flyers, 23-3

In a lopsided affair, the Chemworld Royals crushed the United Flyers, 23-3. Mary Hansen tossed a five-hitter for the victors, striking out 12 over the distance.

Susan Healey, Darlene Correia and Kelly DaPrato paced the winning offense while Pam Miller played on defense for the Flyers.

Despite the high score, outstanding defense was the order of the day in a contest between the Golden Gloves and the Blue Devils, captured by the Gloves, 11-10. Michelle Wickwire and Virginia Faucett were the major factors of defense for the aptly named winners, and Cindy Cranford both pitched and played well in the field for the Blue Devils. Cranford also had a couple of hits in the losing effort.

A team of Misfits beating Charley's Angels may seem far fetched, but that's exactly what happeded Saturday, by a 38-3 count, no less.

Nearly the entire Misfit line-up got into the landsliding attack, with Stacey Smiley, Theresa White and Dawn Damas leading the avalanche of runs and hits. Kathleen Farewell and Bonnie Coder provided the only bright offensive spots for the Angels.

Lisa Lamski drilled a homer for the Eagles but it wasn't enough as the Wild Tangerines beat the Eagles, 16-13.

Jan Baker also had a big day at the plate for the Eagles, but the Tangerine team power prevailed. Ann Gabrielson, Denise Winter, Rosalyn Lytle and Misty Bryant paced the Wild bunch. Lytle also excited the crowd with a spectacular catch in the field.

In somewhat of a pitcher's duel, Kim Kabrick earned the victory and Kelly Hale struck out 13 batter for the losers as the Black Jacks topped the Gremlins, 11-8.

Kelly Myers, Marion Hogler and Daniel Inzerilla were the main offensive weapons for the Black Jacks; Kim MacMillan and Tracy Girard the same for the Gremlins.

Two Kelly Ely home runs were wasted as the Red Barons edged Ely's Mermaids by a 16-15 score. The winning tally in the Minor league affair was knocked in by Dorothy Coffeen.

The Wooden Superstars lived up to their name by setting back the Chemworld Tigers, 18-10. Scottie Bascom got the mound win, fanning a dozen opposing hitters and was a star on offense, along with teammate Shannon McClure.

Jamay Gotelli was a hero at the plate and also participated in a double play, but her performance was not enough to prevent an 18-7 Gas House Gang victory over the Blue Jeans.

The day's wildest battle saw the Dolphins whip the Golddiggers, 38-18. Esther Mulligan played an important pitching role for the Dolphins and Monica Manly and Teresa Ball provided a large chunk of the voluminous Dolphin offense.

Dolsby winner

Carol Dolsby, Monte Vista High senior, has been named the Contra Costa County Flecto Sports Award winner for last week.

Dolsby, who last year went to the state meet in the shot put and was an alternate in the discus, used the latter talent to win the Flecto honor. In the Stapleton Relays in Antioch last week, Dolsby heaved the discus a school and meet record 127-0 to easily win the event. The mark eclipsed her previous personal best by over seven feet.

Pleasanton school veteran

First classified employe nears retirement

PLEASANTON— Little did Jack Gardner know that a casual conversation in the local post office 30 years ago— on a Friday afternoon— would lead to a job with the Pleasanton school district that has spanned those three decades.

In fact, Jack went to work the following Monday of that month 30 years ago and has been at Pleasanton School ever since!

Gardner was hired by principal Guy Householder, the fellow he met in the post office, as a bus driver and maintenance man. He is the oldest employe in point of service in the Amador or Pleasanton school districts.

He's seen all the changes ... and has been a part of or responsible for more than a few of them.

Jack Gardner— district's first classified employe

A native of Oklahoma City, Okla., Gardner came out of the military in 1945 and worked for two years in an aircraft plant in his home community.

He came to Pleasanton in 1947 on vacation to visit some friends, met Householder at the post office on a Friday and went to work Monday.

Gardner is a walking history book on Pleasanton School lore. He notes that the first school was built in 1864. The second buildings were constructed in 1924 and were torn in 1953 to make way for the existing buildings.

When Gardner took over the maintenace duties and bus route, there were about 260 K-8 students at Pleasanton Grammar School, the only grade school in Pleasanton them.

His drives out Santa Rita and Bernal in those days took him into the "rural" areas. The environs around Foothill Road were strictly wilderness!

Pleasanton School had two 50-passenger buses in those days. His counterpart at Amador Valley High was Jimmy Georgis.

The staff at Pleasanton consisted of about 11 teachers in the late 40s. In 1950, according to Gardner, a building was moved from Camp Parks to the school, to the area that is now the District MEDIA Center. It served as both classroom and offices for the district administration.

Gardner served as custodian and bus driver for 20 years. For the past 10 years he has been primarily charged with maintenance.

To say that Gardner knows every conduit, wire and structural problem at Pleasaton School is not an exaggeration.

Pleasanton got its second classified employe in 1948 when Karl Klutts joined the staff. Klutts was at Pleasanton and later Amador until the late 1960s.

The initial classified employes chapter was organized in 1962 and included personnel at Pleasanton, Alisal and Valley View. There was a total of 16 classified employes in the district at that time.

Robert Demeyer, now head custodian at Amador Valley High School, was the first president of Chapter 155, California School Employes Association.

Gardner was treasurer that year and president the next. He has served two terms as president and held most of the other offices in the chapter.

From the cozy little group of 16, the number of classified employes in the Pleasanton and Amador school districts has grown to 250.

Contract negotiations, Gardner comments, were pretty informal in the early years and still pretty relaxed up until two years ago. This past school year has represented the first under collective bargaining laws.

Gardner believes that the local districts "are a little ahead" of most districts in the matter of salaries and benefits.

Though his retirment date is Oct. 1, 1978, it'll doubtlessly be many years before the employes and students at Pleasanton School, as well as the entire district, forget the path that Jack Gardner forged for them and the job he's accomplished.

Murray teachers seeking written transfer notice

Murray Teachers Association representatives believe the 1977-78 contract now before trustees is the result of comprehensive surveying and meetings with teachers at every district school.

MTA officers, headed by president Bob Kroetch and negotiating committee chairman George Richmond, told trustees Monday night the document took over 500 man hours of volunteer time to put together.

Teachers are asking for full binding arbitration of grievances, to be applied at step three of grievance actions, costof-living (determined on the March - to - March figures for the Bay Area) and a 5 per cent increase in salary.

Richmond says the critical bargaining issues include teacher requests for an improved transfer policy and length of work day.

The Murray district is in the throes of declining enrollment, which has already resulted in 10 teachers receiving notice they'll lose their positions.

With the conversion of Frederiksen School to seventh - eighth grades and the simultaneous changing of enrollment boundaries, the prospect of a host of teachers being transferred is likely.

MTA is asking, via the contract document, that the transfer policy include written notice well in advance of any transfer and opportunity for the teacher (s) to respond.

The negotiating comittee of Richmond, Marilyn Mackey, Jerry Joyce and Paul Vinella were non-comittal, generally, when asked if the presence of a new board member (Donald C. Biddle) and a new superintendent by mid-June would have a significant and positive affect on the length of negotiations.

Richmond felt, however, that both Biddle and Linda Jeffery, also elected to a four-year term, had evidenced a strong desire to find out what was happening at the schools.

While Kroetch contended that seven teachers at his school, Fallon, are being transferred, all agreed that the staff for Frederiksen next year has been set.

The Murray board is scheduled to meet with teacher unit representatives Monday to discuss the contract proposal. The meeting is open to the public and will start at 8 p.m. at Frederiksen.

The board's counter - proposal will be presented May 2, with active negotiations starting on or about May 9.

Omar Sharif Visits The Great Pyramid

Omar Sharif travels to his native Egypt to host "Mysteries of the Great Pyramid," an hour - long special that explores the unanswered questions of the Great Pyramid of Giza, Wednesday night at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

"Mysteries of The Great Pyramid," an hour - long special hosted by Omar Sharif, explores the enigmas of The Great Pyramid of Giza, Wednesday night at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

The Great Pyramid, which stands on the Egyptian desert near Cairo, has been measured, explored, investigated and conjectured about by archeologists, historians, mystics and eccentrics. Yet, today, nearly 5,000 years after its completion, it still poses some basic and unanswered questions which William Kronick, producer - writer - director of the special for Wolper Productions, attemtps to answer:

How was the pyramid constructed? Were the primitive building techniques we ascribe to the ancient Egyptians capable of the task, and did they employ methods still to be discovered?

What was the real purpose behind the sole survivor of the ancient Seven Wonders of the World? Was it merely a tomb for a great Pharoah, or is it in fact a repository for some still - to - be - found answers to vast and universal secrets?

And what is the basis of "pyramid power" that is alleged to do anything from resharpen razor blades to provide extra strength to the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team which keeps pyramids in the locker room?

Viewers will be taken on a journey inside this man - made, 500 - foot stone mountain to explore its captivating mystery from the first recorded attempt to probe its secrets in the 9th century to the most recently published theories of its "secret energies."

The dramatic discovery and opening of the tomb of Tutankhamen (King Tut), the first Egyptian royal tomb to be found intact, is also re - told in historic film and still photographs. Tut's treasures are now attracting crowds as the exhibit tours the U.S.
